It is freely admitted that there are reasons for and against joint action the treatment of the Nicaraguan situation. While the administration would in all ordinary cases desire the cooperation of the Mexican republic in the settlement of troubles in the states of Central America in accordance with the Washington agreement, there are said to be strong reasons why the United States government prefers to deal with the Nicaraguan affair without the assistance or even the advice of Mexico or any other government.

Because of the request by Secretary L. Mexico Would Keep Zelnya In.

Ever since Mexico showed her first signs of a desire to be consulted with regard to the American policy toward Nicaragua it has been apparent that her interests in Central America were different from ours, but there has been a desire to keep any differences quiet. Even after Governor Creel started on his mission here the State Department persistently denied that he was coming for any purpose other than the settlement of the old Costa Rica-Panama of the old Costa Rica-Panama ary dispute, and that in the f authentic dispatches from Mexico City saying that his real purpose had to do with Nicaragua.

Mr. Crael's proposals are most pacific and look, if possible, to the retention of Zelaya in office. In case the United States refuses to permit him to continue the normal exercise of his authority for the remaining two years of his term, Mexico desires that some friend of the Zelaya administration, like Senor Madriz, assume control.

While Mexico is anxious to preserve an appearance of harmony with the United States, it is easy to understand how circumstances would prevent the most important Latin republic from lining up with this country.

In Guatemala there are 50,000 Mexicans, and the ruler of that country is President Cabrera, a tyrant like Zelaya and Castro. The Mexican government feels the need in Central America of a strong man to hold him in check, and the strong man they see is Zelaya or one of his associates and sympathister.

Mexican Guubont for Zelaya.

Mexican Gunboat for Zelaya.

An interesting fact, as showing how the United States and Mexico have gradually drifted apart in this matter, is that when Secretary Knox's severe letter dismissing the Nicaraguan charge d'affaires was sent the Mexican roarge dataires was sent the Mexican government was awaiting an answer to proposals already made to the United States. News of the Knox letter was received in Mexico with surprise, if not with alarm. It is not certain that an answer has yet been returned to whatever original proposals were first made.

Protectorate by United States.
One of the projects for the solution of the Nicaraguan situation which has been strongly urged upon the State Department is the establishment of a protectorate, either singly by the United States, or jointly with Mexico.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 15. Secretary of State Knox has requested the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to postpone the suggested investigation of the Nicaraguan situation until such time as things shall have eventuated so as to enable him to give the committee a clear understand-

Come into the market through the death of George Salting in this city yesterday, and art circles are greatly streed over the prospect.

Salting was a Dane and inherited a great Australian fortune. His whole life and income were devoted to the interest of the camination and purchase of works of art, and he-became one of the best known collectors in Europe. Apart from this passion Salting was miserly. He lived frugally in two rooms, which were crowded with priceless treasures, that "I will not talk about this ing never given a cent to charity and Popular report credited him with having never given a cent to charity and with never spending one unnecessarily on his personal needs.

Salting's collection of porcelains, now on loan in the Kensington Museum, is the finest perhaps in the world. Many paintings owned by him now hang in the National Gallery. Directors of museums made it a practice to refrain from bidding against the eccentric man at sales, because they believed tric man at sales, because they believed that his collection would be bequeathed that his collection would be bequeathed to the nation. One of the connoisseur's eccentricities, however, was a reluctance to make a will, and it is not known whether he ever made one. Accordingly the museum officials are somewhat disturbed lest the precious collection be disposed of through the auction rooms.

All knowledge of the murder of Captain Quentin Rankin at Walnut Log by a band of night riders was denied in every detail by Garrett Johnson and Arthur Cloar, alleged leaders of the organization, and charged with the murder of Captain Rankin, when they took the stand in their own behalf here to-day.

Johnson even went so far as to say that he knew nothing about the night riders, and that he never saw any of them or talked to them.

Cloar admitted that he accompanied the night riders upon one raid, but said he did not consider that "night riding," as they did not put on their masks until they reached their destination. On cross-examination Cloar said he had never fired a gun in his life, and did not know even how to handle one.

PLANS NEW FLIGHT

Bust and Figure.

(From New York Journal.)

It is a simple but sure method of developing the bust, arms, neck, hips and shoulders of women, who, through some defect of nutrition and circuiation, are forever being humilated by their more fortunate sisters. First, it must be understood that the human skin is an emormous gland, richly endowed with nerves, secreting and excreting organs, and a network of minute blood vessels which contain at one time over one-third of all the blood in the body—that is, if nature is parfect.

The relation of the skin to the vital organs through the nervous system in controlling the blood supply is such as to put them as a team working together.

Get soparately two canes glycerine, three ounces of rosswater, one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom) and 5 cents worth berax. Mix the glycerine with tincture cadomene, shake and let stand two hours, then add a teaspoonful of borax and the rosewater. Apply to the parts needing development morning and night, rubbing until theroughly absorbed then wash off with hot water and soap and dry.
